Nicaragua

The Ministry of Interior (MINT) has been increasing its responsibilities during the past few years, and these now go far beyond its original internal security functions. To a considerable extent, MINT's growth is a reflection of its aggressive and ambitious chief, Tomas Borge, who is using his position to build a power base. A certain ideological rivalry has long existed between Borge, the hardliner, and the Ortegas, who are considered more pragmatic. What are the relative positions of strength between these two factions? Will these differences/rivalries flare up and become more divisive? What is the likely impact of these differences on the military capability of the EPS (Ejercito Popular Sandinista) and MINT, particularly in operations requiring cooperation between the two organizations? (STATE/INR-political aspects; DIA-military aspects -- 30 minutes)
